ABOUT DR. RUSH

Dr. Rush is the great-granddaughter of—former slave, turned famous educator, and founder of Tuskegee University—Booker T. Washington.

Inspired by her great lineage—when speaking to individuals, small groups, or large audiences around the country—she is known to parallel her compelling story of overcoming tremendous difficulties, with her great-grandfather’s historical story of rising above slavery.

She is naturally able to captivate audiences with her strong, but gentle spirit. People not only walk away with a deep desire to take personal responsibility to reach higher ground, they also gain insight into how to build upon “tried and true” foundations that were laid by ancestors many years ago.

Dr. Rush is an author, speaker, & educator on rising above difficult circumstances, self-improvement, personal empowerment, mental health, and more.

She’s taught psychology courses as an adjunct professor, she’s been a featured writer, and has appeared in print, on radio, and on television highlighting her achievements, and the achievements of her great-grandfather.

Dr. Rush earned a master’s degree in psychology, and a doctorate degree in education/organizational leadership. She has 20-plus years of combined experience in these pivotal fields.
